Description

I am using the retrospective union, fertility & employment histories primarily with a selection of cross-sectional variables for demographic information on female respondents. I notice that employment histories were only collected for a small proportion of the respondents and I wondered why these histories were not collected from the same number of respondents that provided fertility & union histories. I would also like to ask whether you would anticipate this introducing any bias into the data?

Employment histories will however gradually build up as more waves are released.
We are planning to release the full Wave 2 data at the end of this year.
